The biggest gaming news of the year came on Friday the 13th, when Microsoft's $69 billion acquisition of gaming studio Activision Blizzard finally closed, with the mammoth investment from Microsoft. The acquisition is expected to create a new gaming giant, combining the strengths of both companies. This move is seen as a major step towards dominating the gaming market, especially in the console and PC sectors. The deal is valued at approximately $69 billion, making it one of the largest acquisitions in the industry's history. Microsoft's CEO, Satya Nadella, expressed his excitement about the partnership, stating that it would allow the company to offer a more diverse and high-quality gaming experience to its users. Activision Blizzard, on the other hand, is a leading developer of popular video games, including titles like Call of Duty, Overwatch, and Diablo. The acquisition is expected to result in a significant increase in Microsoft's revenue and market share in the gaming sector. Analysts predict that this move will have a positive impact on the company's long-term growth and profitability. The deal is expected to be completed in the next few months, after which Microsoft will officially become a major player in the gaming industry. This acquisition is a clear sign of Microsoft's commitment to expanding its business beyond traditional software and services, and into the highly competitive and profitable gaming market. The move is also seen as a strategic response to the growing competition from other tech giants like Google and Amazon, who are also investing heavily in gaming. Overall, the acquisition of Activision Blizzard by Microsoft is a landmark event in the gaming industry, and it is expected to have a significant impact on the way we play and consume video games in the future.
