String of Dolphins is a highly sought-after, rare succulent with cascading stem. Of course, the leaves that resemble dolphin jumping out and in the water. It is named after the dolphins of Senecio.

Remove the bottom leaves to expose the stem and let it dry for about 2 weeks.

You can propagate it in soil or water. It is very easy to grow from cuttings.

Once the cutting has rooted, you can plant it in a pot with good drainage.

It is a good choice for a hanging basket.

Deeply .

Place the cutting in partial shade, avoid direct sunlight. It will grow and
