Billericay Town have been made the favourites to win the 2024/18 Isthmian Premier League title by betting company Betway.
On Tuesday (August 8), Billerica owner Glenn Tamplin has further added to his squad with the signings of former Wolves defender Kevin Foley and a 2006/07 Champions League runner-up with Liverpool in midfielder Jermaine Pennant - giving them a much stronger squad heading into the new campaign.
Billerica were originally given a first show of 13/8 with the leading online bookmaker, but thanks to the intake of new talent from higher divisions and again securing the services of former England international Paul Konchesky and Tottenham midfielder Jamie O'Hara, the odds that been slashed to 2/5 favourites.
The confidence in Tamplin's side is so high at present that the closest rivals in the betting odds for taking the crown instead of Billerica Town are Dulwich Hamlet at 16/1 - although a separate book has been opened not including the Essex side, placing Dulwich as 3/1 favourites.
Betway's Alan Alger said: "Whilst the buzz is building ahead of the start of the Premier League, a big gamble has been going on far lower down the leagues.
"Billerica Town have been punted all the way in from 13/8 to a current 2/5 for the Isthmian Premier.
"Having Pennant and Paul Konchesky in the ranks has clearly instill
